

Christian Ollivier

Christian Ollivier is currently working at the University of Reunion Island and has been there since 2007. He is a professor in the field of language didactics (teaching and learning of foreign languages) and the co-head of a research laboratory in education. His research areas are pedagogical approaches, the use of digital technology for language teaching and learning, and the didactics of plurilingualism. Christian has directed many international projects and has published several books and scientific articles in these fields. He is currently coordinating a project at the European Centre for Modern Languages of the Council of Europe: e-lang - Digital literacy for the teaching and learning of languages (<http://www.ecml.at/e-lang>) and a European project dealing with the assessment of intercomprehension competences (EVAL-IC – <http://www.evalic.eu>).